The merchant cross-examined the state police at length.

Robert W. Otis, who said that a man not regularly amployed put up the butan ounce or just about the weight of a butter dish used to weigh out a pound of butter, as well as some cases of goods not marked as required by law, brought nineteen merchants before the city court on Thursday morning to answer charges made against them by members of the state police. Twelve of the merchants who had counsel had their cases continued until Sept. 10th, five of them were fined and decision was reserved in two cases by Judge John H. Barnes. Attorneys who appeared for a number of the merchants who had been summened to court were Lawyers T. J. Kelly, N. J. Ayling, Charles L. Steward, Edward T. Burke and J. J. Desmond.

In none of the evidence that was produced was there any attempt made to show that there had been intent to deceive in making the sales.

Charles A. Fine of Hartford, deputy superintendent of weights and measures and Walter F. WIND AND GYPSY MOTH.

Government Investigations Show That the Larvae of the Pest Are Blown Considerable Distances Into Previous Uninfested Territory.

That the wind is chiefly responsible for the general spread of the gypsy moth in New England is the conclusion reached as the result of an investigation carried on by the department of agriculture in 1913 and 1914, the report of which her that here were ment of agriculture in 1913 and 1914, the report of which has just been pub-lished as Bulletin No. 273. It has been found that in the last forty years the pest has gained an average of 5 miles a year toward the northeast in con-sequence of the southwest winds which prevail in Naw England during the sequence of the southwest winds which prevail in New England during the season most favorable for the dissem-ination of the moth larvae. To the northward, the gain has been at the rate of 2 1-2 miles per year, while in other directions the spread has been slower.

To prevent this spread continuing the badly infected areas near the border, says the report, must be brought under control. This can be accomplished either by natural enemies or by hand methods, or by both. In the infested territory, its natural enemies are now performing important. infested territory, its natural enemies are now performing important services. The quarantine on lumber products, Christmas trees, nursery stock and stone from the infested territory is also, it is believed, an effective precaution against the spread of the pest into other sections of the United States. The necessity for hand work on the borders of the infested area is, however, emphasized by the evidenc of the great part that the wind plays in disseminating the larvae. The maximum distance that it is known larvae have been carried by the wind is 13 1-2 miles. It is probable, however, that there are unrecorded instances in which this record has been exceeded.

Robert W. Otis, who said that a man not regularly employed put up the butter that the state police bought was accused of short weight in a pound of bulk butter. He was fined $20 and costs. The costs amounted to $17.02. The same fine and costs was imposed upon Charles F. Meyer for short weight of 1 3-15 ounces in butter.

Peter H. Ethier, from whom butter, lard and beans were bought, totalling $5 cents worth, claimed that it was 35 cents butter, but that he knew there was less than a pound and accordingly charged for only 28 cents worth. The lard and beans came to 30c. The butter was taken out of a tub and was the last that was in the tub. He was fined like the others.

Andrew Deneff said it was his slater who waited on the state police and sold them the things from his store. He was accused of selling beans by wine measure and butter 1 5-16 ounces short. He too was fined like the others. The charge against Mrs. Edith Dombroeki was nolled with actual costs of $10. She said she was not in the store when the butter was sold.

One of the merchants who was accused of a shortage in a pound of butter equal to the paper dish said he thought he was very much the victim of circumstances, as the instructions in the store were never to weigh the butter in the dishes, but that time the clerk disobeyed the rules. Variation

In their attempt to locate short weight it has been the custom for one of the state police, Mr. Fein, to go into the store and make the purchase. He would go out with the goods he bought and at once return with Mr. Stiles, who had been waiting outside. When the proprietor had acknowledged in response to a question from Mr. Stiles that he had made a sale to Mr. Fein, the officers would announce who Fein, the officers would announce who they were and proceed to test the scales.

WOMEN WERE RELEASED AFTER MUCH QUESTIONING. No Progress Made in Finding Murder ers of Seaman De Groot.

Three hours of grilling Thursday afternoon at New London police head-quarters did not bring forth any new light whatsoever on the murder of William De Groot, the seaman, which C. Raynolds, the missionary who had been driven from Van in Turkish Armenia.

Although this church does not pay all of the money necessary for the work of Dr. Raynolds he is counted as the special missionary of the church which contributes through its members. Dr. Raynolds is a mative of Longmeadow.

Mrs. Raynolds was Martha Tinkers. She was born in Lyme, Conn., and was 75 years old.

Dr. Raynolds was on his way to Van. He had been in this country nearly two years collecting funds to enlarge nis work. The war delayed his return. He left several weeks ago.

It has been the belief of the police that there is someone in the negro colony there that knows the story of the crime. But that person has not come to light after strenuous search, and there was a theory advanced Thursday night that an automobile might have knocked the man down and then, to hide the accident, the occupants, under cover of darkness, placed the body in cover of darkness, placed the body in the place and position in which it was found. AT DAVIS THEATRE.

Vaudeville and Photoplays. A European novelty act that had its own attractive stage setting was the vaudeville feature on Thursday at the Davis theatre for the midweek change of bill and brought much applause for La Hoen & Dupree. They did a little singing as an introduction for their act and then revealed the real feature, which was the crack shooting of Miss which was the crack shooting of Mies Dupree, whose unerring aim, both from the stage and the balcony invariably punctured every target on the first shot. She hit matches and blew out candles with her rifle bullets, and Mr La Hoen wound up the performance by playing off the air for a popular song with the bullets he shot at an arrangement of bells.

The motion pictures were both instructive and entertaining and the house had good sized audiences at all performances.

The high rod scored 102 salmon and 19 grilise. The second best rod had a record of 80 salmon and 7 grilise.

Other camps along the river also reported a good season, better than last year as a usual thing, and Mr. Mitchell's holdings on the river gave an account that compared very favorably with any. Recent measures taken seem to insure an ever-increasing run of salmon on the river. These include the protection from poaching, the establishment of hatcheries by the Canadian government and the buying up of nots in the river.
